No Human Rights = No Democracy

Special Report No. 90

December 6, 2005

The human rights situation in Ethiopia has been going from bad to worse since the May 2005 General Election. The June 8th crackdown against peaceful protestors has claimed dozens of lives, including those who were not involved in the protest, and led to mass arrest of thousands of innocent people from Addis Ababa alone. This repressive measure by the government has only exacerbated the political tension in the country.

The roundtable talks between the opposition and the ruling party, which was mediated by the diplomatic community in Addis Ababa, were discontinued without any result. The call of the Coalition for Unity and Democracy (CUD) for peaceful protest through the hooting of car horns and stay-aways was denounced as unlawful by the government, which regarded such protest as tantamount to an insurrection to overthrow the constitutional order. And the closure of peaceful avenues for expressing political dissent has precipitated the explosion of pent up frustration, with the confrontation between stone throwing youths and well armed security forces easily degenerating into an unprecedented street violence on November 1st and 2nd particularly in Addis Ababa. The security forces indiscriminately fired live ammunition at unarmed civilians to stop the protest. The outcome has been yet more loss of lives and unnecessary destruction of both private and public property. On November 15, 2005, the Federal Police Commissioner reported to Parliament that 35 civilians and seven policemen had lost their lives in and outside Addis Ababa, 156 civilians and 338 policemen had been injured, over 153 vehicles, most of them public buses, had been damaged, and private property burned down during the protest. So far most of the leaders of the CUDP whom the Prime Minister has accused of committing treason, have been put behind bars, awaiting prosecution. Following the wave of mass arrest of people in Addis Ababa, the police reported that it had released over 8,000 people who it said had no link with the street protest, but it has not disclosed how many were arrested and how many are still languishing in official and unofficial prisons as well as military camps. Nor is the true scale of the loss of lives and the destruction of property known since the crack down has also shut down most of the independent presses and thrown into jail several journalists and publishers.

Despite the enormous challenges encountered, the Ethiopian Human Rights Council (EHRCO) has been investigating the human rights violations that have occurred on 1st November 2005 and on subsequent days. It is still in the process of investigating several reports of human rights violations which it has continued to receive from victims, families of victims, witnesses and other sources. The following report is hence based only on a fraction of the violations that have been reported to EHRCO.

1. Extra-Judicial Killings

Article 14 of the Ethiopian Constitution provides that “Every person has the inviolable and inalienable right to life, the security of person and liberty.” Article 15 also provides that “Every person has the right to life. No person may be deprived of his life except as a punishment for a serious criminal offence determined by law.” Article 13 (2) provides that “The fundamental rights and freedoms specified in this Chapter shall be interpreted in a manner conforming to the principles of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, International Covenants on Human Rights and international instruments adopted by Ethiopia.”

According to Article 3 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (UDHR), “Everyone has the right to life, liberty and security of person.” Article 6 of the International Convention on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR) provides that “Every human being has the inherent right to life. This right shall be protected by law. No one shall be arbitrarily deprived of his life.”

However, in violation of the provisions of the Constitution and the international human rights instruments, government security forces have caused the loss of lives by firing live ammunition at unarmed civilians, several of whom were not even at the scene of the protest.

2. Injuries from Gun Shots and Beatings

Article 16 of the Ethiopian Constitution provides that “Every one has the right to protection against bodily harm.” Article 18 (1) of the same Constitution provides that “Everyone has the right to protection against cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.”

Article 5 of the UDHR provides that ‘No one shall be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.’ Article 7 of the ICPR provides that “No one shall be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment...” Unfortunately, these provisions have once again been grossly violated by the police forces who have caused serious injuries by indiscriminately firing at and beating civilians, regardless of whether they had committed any offence.

3. Arbitrary Arrest and Detention

Sub-Article 17 (2) of the Ethiopian Constitution provides that “No person may be subject to arbitrary arrest, and no person may be detained without a charge or conviction against him.” The Constitution prohibits any deprivation of liberty except as per the procedures and grounds established by law (Art. 17). Sub-Article 19 (1) of the Constitution provides that “Persons arrested have the right to be informed promptly in a language they understand, of the reasons for their arrest and of any charge against them.” Also, Sub-Article 19(3) provides that “Persons arrested have the right to be brought before a court within 48 hours of their arrest...” Sub-Articles 21 (2) of the Constitution states persons held in custody “All persons shall have the opportunity to communicate with, and to be visited by their spouses or partners, close relatives, friends, religious councillors, medical doctors and their legal counsel.”

Contrary to these provisions, the police have detained thousands of citizens and later released them saying that they had committed no offence. A number of detainees held in places such as Dedesa Valley have appeared on Ethiopian television and said that they had been arrested without being involved in the protest. Many others are still held in detention in undisclosed locations without being charged. Reports received by EHRCO indicate that many detainees have been held in Bir Shelleko valley. The military camps used as detention centers are inaccessible to families that wish to visit their loved ones. Furthermore, not many families know where their loved ones are detained. There have also been cases of family members being illegally detained in lieu of other wanted members of their family. This is in clear violation of the fundamental rights of these citizens who are being held against their will as if they were hostages.

4. Disappearances

Many families have reported to EHRCO that they do not know the whereabouts of their loved . The law requires the police to inform families of detained persons the whereabouts of the people in their custody. This has not been fully observed.

6. Other Violations

- 6.1. Illegal search and seizure: In contravention of Article 26 of the Ethiopian Constitution, the homes of members of opposition political parties were searched, their party offices broken into and property and documents taken by the security forces.
- 6.2. Clamp down on the independent press: Sub-Article 29 (3) of the Constitution provides that “Freedom of the press and other mass media and freedom of artistic creativity is guaranteed. Freedom of the press shall specifically include the following elements: a) Prohibition of any form of censorship. b) Access to information of public interest.” Sub-Article 29 (4) further states: “In the interest of the free flow of information, ideas and opinions which are essential to the functioning of a democratic order, the press shall, as an institution, enjoy legal protection to ensure its operational independence and its capacity to entertain diverse opinion.” Contrary to these provisions, however, several publishers of private newspapers and journalists have been arrested and denied bail rights as they are going to face treason charges. Their offices have been broken into and their computers and documents taken by the police. A number of other private newspapers are unable to publish their papers because of the newly imposed indirect censorship and the threat of prosecution against printers. As a result of these anti-constitutional actions, most private papers have been out of circulation since the beginning of November.
- 6.3. Persecution of human rights defenders: Article 1 of the Declaration on the Rights and Responsibility of Individuals, Groups and Organs of Society to Promote and Protect Universally Recognized Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms provides that ‘Everyone has the right, individually and in association with others, to promote and to strive for the protection and realisation of human rights and fundamental freedoms at the national and international level.’ Article 2(1) also provides that ‘Each state has a prime responsibility and duty to protect, promote and implement all human rights and fundamental freedoms, inter alia, by adopting such steps as may be necessary to create all conditions necessary in the social, economic, political and other fields, as well as the legal guarantees required to ensure that all persons under its jurisdiction, individually and in association with others, are able to enjoy all those rights and freedoms in practice.’ Also Article 12(2) provides that ‘The State shall take all necessary measures to ensure the protection by the competent authorities of everyone, individually and in association with others, against violence, threats, retaliation, de facto or de jure adverse discrimination, pressure or any other arbitrary action as consequence of his or her legitimate exercise of the rights referred to in the present Declaration.’

The government’s repressive actions since the May 2005 General Election, in contravention to the above articles, has not spared even human rights defenders who had no involvement in the street protests. Following the June 8th protest in Addis Ababa, three staff members of EHRCO from the head office and three others from the Dessie Branch were illegally arrested and detained for several days. Although they were eventually released, including the three who were held in Zway prison, they were unable to freely carry out their human rights activities. Following the protests on November 1st & 2nd, Yared Haile Mariam and Cherinet Tadesse were put on the list of those accused of treason and wanted by the government. Not only this, the family home of a third employee of EHRCO, Wondimagegne Gashu, has been under continued surveillance of plainclothes security men, although he is not on the list of wanted people. His mother has been taken and interrogated by the police. EHRCO sees no reason why Yared Haile Mariam and Cherinet Tadesse were put on the wanted list, nor why the police are pursuing Wondimagegne Gashu. In fact, Yared Haile Mariam was not even in the country at the time of the November protest, for he was attending a human rights defenders conference in Entebbe starting from October 30, 2005.

EHRCO is also very concerned about the arrest and detention of its other members. Mr. Tesfaye Bekele, a teacher by profession and Chairperson of the members committee of Dessie Branch, was detained on 25th October and released on bail on the 28th. Mr. Seifu Degu, a teacher by profession and D/Chair of the Dessie Branch Committee, Mr. Bezu Mekonen and Mr. Chanie Reta, both EHRCO members and teachers by profession, were detained on November 4, 2005. Mr. Bezu and Mr. Chanie gave themselves up because their wives were earlier taken into custody in their place by the Zone police. They are reported to be detained some 40 km north of Dessie, where their family could not visit them.

Mrs. Elfinesh Demissie, member of EHRCO’s Executive Committee and a teacher by profession, is the latest victim of the political persecution by agents of the government. She was made to pay fines from her salary for not coming to school during the week of protest, although the schools were closed and transport interrupted during this period.

Furthermore, she has been threatened in writing with a “final action” to be taken against her by higher authorities. The nature of this action has not been specified.

The arbitrary killings, mass arrests, and political persecutions following the May General Election are serious impediments to the democratization process in Ethiopia. The Ethiopian Human Rights Council deplures all forms of violence and urges all concerned to desist from any action that causes loss of life, bodily injury and destruction of property. EHRCO believes that violence will not serve the cause of peace and political stability in the country. The Ethiopian government’s repeated attempt to stifle the expression of dissenting views, and its tendency of resorting to brute force to crush its opponents in the name of upholding the constitution, will only breed widespread resentment and lead to a dangerous civil strife. No country can build democracy on the graves of human rights, rule of law and due process. Nor can the constitution be upheld through unconstitutional means.

Therefore, EHRCO calls upon the Ethiopian Government:

- To stop the violation of the provisions of the Ethiopian constitution and the international human rights instruments it has ratified, and to put an end to the continued violation of human rights in the country;
- To release all political prisoners, including civil society leaders, human rights defenders, newspaper publishers, journalists and other citizens who have been detained unlawfully;
- To disclose to family members and/or close relatives the whereabouts of those detained in undisclosed locations as well as allow detainees access to medical treatment, legal counsel and visits by family members;
- To respect freedom of press and allow the independent press to operate according to the law;
- To ensure the impartiality and independence of the investigation into the human rights violations in June and November 2005, and to bring those responsible for human rights crimes to justice;
- To provide medical support to the victims of the November violence and compensation for those who have lost their lives or sustained serious injury as a result of police action;
- To create a favourable political atmosphere and condition for dialogue, reconciliation, and social harmony; to this effect, it should put an end to the hate propaganda on the official media, and stop the harassment and persecution of human rights defenders, journalists, opposition party members as well as supporters.

EHRCO calls upon the International Community, human rights organizations, peace activists, and development partners to press the Ethiopian government to fulfill the above conditions to ensure sustainable peace and democracy in Ethiopia. EHRCO urges all those who stand for human rights, democracy and peace to write to the following government officials requesting for the implementation of the above without further delay:
