

A Ferocious Attack Committed In Gambella Region

72nd Special Report

5 January 2004

Introduction

In ethnic conflicts that had occurred at different times in Gambella Region, many were killed and wounded. Public and private property was damaged. EHRCO had reported the casualties on human lives and property in its 55th Special Report issued on 6 September 2002. Failure on the part of both the Federal and Regional Governments to take urgent and lasting measures to bring an end to the ethnic conflicts and the repeated attacks on civilians by unidentified armed groups has resulted in the disastrous attacks recently mounted against members of the Anuak tribes.

As a result of the ethnic policy adopted by the EPRDF government, conflicts have been flaring up in different parts of the country. These conflicts have resulted in the death of thousands of civilians and considerable damage of property. In attacks launched against the Anuaks in the Gambella Region on 12 and 13 December 2003, many were killed and wounded and a considerable amount of property was damaged. Thousands have fled their homes to the jungles. Children and older people who could not flee the attacks were also killed and wounded.

All public offices and most private businesses were closed until 22 December. Schools have been closed until the time that this report is being prepared. The details of facts EHRCO gathered by visiting the area from 21-25 December 2003 are presented as follows:

The Cause of the Attacks

The indigenous people in Gambella Region are the Anuak, the Nuer, the Komo, the Medjenger and the Oppo. People that moved from the different parts of the country and who live in the region are referred to as “highlanders” or people from the center. Though all the indigenous ethnic groups are represented in the regional government structure, the top positions are held by the Anuak and the Nuer. The “highlanders” have long been complaining that repeated human rights violations and injustices were being committed against them by some officials of the region that belong to the Anuak ethnic group. They also tell that their repeated petitions to the Federal as well as the Regional officials have fallen on deaf ears. As a result tension has been created between the Anuaks on the one hand, and people from other ethnic groups living in the region.

The ‘highlanders’ complain that apart from the ethnic based discrimination that they have been subjected to, the periodic killings and looting launched against them by unidentified armed groups in the region have precipitated the situation into an all-out clash. The failure on the part of the Regional Government to apprehend and to bring to justice those armed groups has also contributed a lot to the worsening of the situation by the day. It was in such time of heightened hostility among the different ethnic groups in the region that the conflicts escalated and turned into a violent clash.

On 17 November 2003, in a place named Abebo, 40 kilometers from Gambella town, unidentified armed men killed in cold blood, five people who work for a construction company called Satcon. Their names appear in Table 1 below.

Table 1.Names and Other Details of Victims

No.	Name of deceased	Details
1.	Dessalegn Feyissa	A grader operator
2.	Belay Hassen	A dozer operator
3.	Mitiku Yimer	A superintendent
4.	Tewodros Aberra	–
5.	Alemayehu Shanka	–

Members of the defense force in the region had taken the bodies to Gambella town. The attackers however, have not been captured and brought to justice. Similarly, on 12 December 2003, seven workers of the Gambella branch office of the Immigration and Returnees Affairs Authority and a policeman escorting them were ambushed and killed while traveling on duty in a place called Finkiwo, 30 kilometers from Gambella town. The bodies were found mutilated by the attackers. According to information EHRCO received from the region’s police office, the limbs and necks of the bodies were cut to parts. The attackers also cut the penis of the policeman and put it in his mouth. The region’s police confirmed the names and other details of four of the victims. As to the remaining four, police said that no one could identify them, as they were day laborers not registered in the Authority’s list of permanent employees.

Table 2 Names and Other Details of The Four Victims Who Were Identified.

No.	Name of the Deceased	Details
1.	Binyam Ali	Head of the Gambella branch office of the Immigration and Returnees Affairs Authority
2.	Kefyalew Waqjirra	A driver in the Authority
3.	Kasu Fofa	An engineer in the Authority
4.	Pvt.Solomon Tesfaye	A policeman

Members of the defense force latter arrived at the scene of the killings and took the mutilated bodies of the victims by putting them in a sack, to Gambella town. Rather than taking the bodies to the hospital, they took them to the angry crowd in the town of Gambella. Then, they showed the crowd mutilated bodies packed in a sack. The infuriated crowd headed directly to the office of the regional Council escorting the pick up car that carried the bodies. Once they reached there, they started throwing stones on the office building. Guards at the building tried to disband the crowd by firing into the air but they failed. The Chief Administrator of the Region escaped the attacks of the angry crowd but stones thrown at him shattered the front and side glasses of his car. Then, attributing the atrocious killings of the eight men to Anuak armed groups in the jungles the crowd moved to take retaliatory actions on civilian Anuaks who live in Gambella town. Armed with axes, hatchets, daggers, knives and other weapons, the crowd headed to the villages of the Anuaks. The Anuaks tried to flee the attacks by running to their homes and other directions. As all exits out of the town were blocked by soldiers, about 5000 Anuaks were forced to enter the premises of the Mekane Yesus Church in the town. The mob, in collaboration with members of the defense force, continued to attack those who could not get anywhere to hide. Many were killed and sustained severe and light injuries. Moreover, about 470 houses belonging to the Anuaks were burnt down. The Gambella town municipality told EHRCO that it buried 65 bodies in one grave in a place called Jejebe at the out skirts of Gambella town in the night of 12 December 2003. The Office also said that it could identify only 19 of the bodies. As to the remaining 46, identification was not possible as no documents were found with the bodies and they were beginning to swell up. According to information EHRCO received from officials and residents of Gambella town, more than 300 Anuaks were killed by the attacks. Of these, EHRCO could get names and other details of the 93. In addition to this, the names and other details of 42 Anuaks who sustained severe and light injuries were also found and incorporated in this report. As many Auaks fled the town, it was not possible to see the actual magnitude of the attacks and the human and material casualty that followed. However, EHRCO could be able to take pictures of those who sustained heavy and light injuries and who are still in Gambella town. EHRCO had also learnt that the region's police took 50 Anuaks, who sustained heavy injuries by gunshots from members of the defense forces, to the nearby town of Metu for further treatment.

Tables 3 and 4 show the names and other details of the persons killed and wounded by the attacks according to information gathered by EHRCO.

Conclusion

As a result of the ethnic policy of the government, it is becoming a common occurrence to see Ethiopians who lived in peace and harmony, killing each other categorizing themselves along ethnic lines. The ethnic and religious conflicts that have been flaring up in the different parts of the country are evidence of the fact that ethnic hostilities are getting more serious by the day. Rather than enabling citizens understand and exercise their rights as human beings, the ethnic based policy that the government is promoting is poisoning people's mentality by a negative tribal thinking. And this has created a situation that is getting dangerous as to threaten the very existence of the nation.

In a situation where millions of Ethiopians are being hit by famine, thousands are suffering having lost their security to work and live, many are rendered homeless due to natural and man made calamities; in general in a situation where poverty in the country has reached its acute stage, ethnic clashes that break out in the different parts of the country, could get out of hand and result in a more serious loss than what has already happened. Therefore EHRCO appeals to the Ethiopian government:

- To rectify its destructive ethnic policy which plays a significant part in causing such problems and to facilitate ways that promote good governance and make the public beneficiaries.
- To take appropriate legal measures on those officials who agitate the public to stand against each other and create enmity among the different ethnic groups. Blaming external forces and trying to cover up the real cause of the problem would do no good.
- To bring to justice those members of the defense and police forces who killed and attacked civilians.
- To rehabilitate the displaced members of the Anuak tribe by helping them rebuild their damaged homes and by supplying replacements to the property they had lost.
- To capture and bring to justice the armed groups who murdered the workers of Satcon Construction and those of the Immigration and Returnees Affairs Authority.

EHRCO also calls on those who stand for peace and the rule of law to exert pressure on the Ethiopian government, to appreciate the real seriousness of the problems in Gambella and other parts of the country and work hard to seek just and legal solutions by writing to government bodies and officials listed below.
